IT'S THE FLUID!

- Automatic transmissions are becoming increasingly common in Ghana.
- What most people don't know is that automatic transmissions are very temperamental and a lot less forgiving than manual transmissions if improperly cared for.
- While most people pay attention to their engine oil, the same can't be said about their automatic transmission fluid.
- While manual transmissions have actual gears interlocking with each other to cause gear changes, in automatic transmissions, the fluid does most of that job.
- This makes the automatic transmission fluid very important.
- Ensure that checking your transmission fluid becomes a part of your maintenance routine.
